CAUTION.—FOX'S FRAMES for UMBRELLAS and PARASOLS.—SAMUEL FOX and Co., Patentees and Sole Manufacturers of the Paragon Frame, and Manufacturers of Frames made of solid steel wire, for Umbrellas and Parasols, beg to invite notice to their Label, which should be placed inside each Umbrella and Parasol, and to caution dealers and the public against imitations of their Patent Pebble Tips. These imitations, which are brittle and easily defaced, are being used by other persons to cause inferior frames to resemble those manufactured by S. Fox and Co., by which a small extra profit may be made at the expense of the durability of the Umbrella or Parasol. S. Fox and Co.'s Frames, made of solid wire, are warranted not to lock together on opening the Umbrella or Parasol, and, from the superior quality and temper of the steel, will not snap nor become bent in the use. They are charged one penny per Umbrella or Parasol more than the Frames of other makers. S. Fox and Co.'s Patent Pebble Tips, being used only as a trade mark to denote their special manufacture, are charged without profit. They are of extreme strength and durability, and will last as long as the Frames.—Deepcar, Sheffield, July, 1864
